On December 31, 1992, Babri Masjid in Ayodhya was demolished by a mob claiming that the mosque was built at Lord Ram's birthplace. At least 2,000 people were killed in the aftermath of the events. The genesis and the horrific fallout of the incident, which was more an aberration of humanity than a religious group, have been described by a number of artists. Here are some films and documentaries on the subject: (Documentary)Anand Patwardhan put together this documentary on the campaign of Vishwa Hindu Parishad to build a Ram temple in Ayodhya. But his documentary failed to ring any warning bells. Months after the film was released, Babri Masjid was demolished. The film received a Filmfare Award and a National Award for Best Investigative Film. VHP slammed the film, denoting it anti-Hindu. (Movies) This 1995 film by ace auteur Mani Ratnam explores complex human relationships on the basis of shared antagonism. The film won acclaim for its depiction of a love story between a Hindu boy and a Muslim girl during the riots in Bombay following the demolition that killed over 200 people. (Movies) Set against the backdrop of the days leading up to the demolition, this 1995 film by Saeed Akhtar Mirza traces the relationship between a 15-year-old school girl from a middle-class Mumbai-based Muslim family and her ailing grandfather. As communal tensions erupt in the city, Naseem observes the shifting dynamics at her school and in the neighborhood, while her grandfather watches helplessly on a city getting deeply divided on communal lines. Mirza bagged National Award for Best Direction and to the movie. (Movies) The 2005 Malayalam film sheds light on the consequences of the demolition for The Muslims in Kerala. This is a tale of a young man who is inspired to take up religious fundamentalism to avenge demolition and how his actions affect his relationships. (Movies) This 2007 film of the Anurag Kashyap film was based on the book titled Black Friday - The True Story of the Bombay Bomb Blasts by Hussain Zaidi. The film and book chronicle the 1993 serial bomb blasts in Mumbai, which were reportedly organized in retaliation for the Bombay riots. (Docu-drama) This made-for-TV documentary series presented by Shekhar Kapur and produced by ABP News is an attempt to chronicling Indian history from 1947. The series also included a segment on the Babri Masjid demolition - which included a detailed recall of the incident and interviews with journalists. Click here to watch the full episode. Photo: Screengrab/Youtube- ABP NEWS (Film)The opening sequences of this 2008 Oscar-winning film from Danny Boyle's Kiten are based on riot-torn Dharavi in 1993. The unrest sparked communal violence in the slum, where Hindus and Muslims lived in peace for years before the riots. (Movies) This 2010 film revolves around the life of a Hindu boy and a Muslim girl who get separated in the riots in Mumbai after the demolition. Striker was the first Indian film to premiere on Youtube on the day of its release. Release.
